

Consent information

Understanding Our Analytics and Your Privacy

At M-Craft Blog, we strive to offer you a seamless and personalized browsing experience. To achieve this, we use cookies for Google Analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. These cookies allow us to collect valuable information about how you interact with our website.

What information do we collect?

Google Analytics gathers data such as the pages you visit, the time you spend on each page, the links you click, and the type of device and browser you use. This information is crucial for us to understand user behavior, improve our content, and enhance your overall experience on our blog.

How Do Cookies Work?

Cookies are small text files that are stored on your device's browser. They help us recognize your device when you return to our site, enabling us to analyze your preferences and tailor our content to better suit your interests.

Your Privacy Matters

We want to assure you that the data collected through Google Analytics is anonymized and aggregated. This means that we cannot identify you personally through this information. Your privacy is of utmost importance to us, and we are committed to handling your data responsibly.

Consent Banner

By continuing to use our website, you agree to the use of cookies for Google Analytics according to our Privacy Policy. If you haven't already, you can manage your cookie preferences at any time by adjusting your browser settings.

Questions or Concerns?

If you have any questions or concerns about how we handle your data, please refer to our privacy policy for more detailed information. Alternatively, feel free to reach out to us at pillar.mr@gmail.com.